

In support of satellite radio (XW Radio) I feel that limiting what I have access to is in effect restraint of trade. This is in direct violation of not only their first amendment rights, but also FTC rules & regulation as respects unfair restraint of trade.

If you are limit what satellite radio can transmit then why is there also not a ban on what is available via computer, the inter-net or cable television?

Clearly the N.A. B is afraid that satellite radio is going to dip into their rather large pockets for a few pennies.

As an American that has seen too many times big business trying to snuff out the "new small kid" on the block. I have always seen the regulatory agencies of the government stand up against the Golliths and affirm the rights of the Davids. I hope and trust that in this case you will stand the test and uphold the rights of satellite radio.

I look forward to rightous decision in support of satellite communications.

Respectfully sumbitted
